THIS story is the capstone of a brilliant and enduring literary career. Mr. Bacheller was engaged upon the actual writing for three years, but it is the fruit of a life's reading and thinking, the flower of mature imagination.

Here in memorable narrative are the fine flavor of romance, the quick thrill of bold deeds, the universal appeal of courage and self-sacrifice. Again as in "A Man for the Ages," the author has found inspiration in the life and public services of a great American. Benjamin Franklin, the most human, wise, engaging and lovable character in our early history dominates the novel.

In the Days of Poor Richard

—By Irving Bacheller

WHEN Benjamin Franklin said to King George the Third: "If anyone supposes that I could prevail upon my countrymen to take black for white or wrong for right, he does not know them nor me," is the period Mr. Bacheller has chosen for his new romance—the fight of our fathers for liberty. Dramatically involved with the historical incidents and figures is the beautiful love story of a boy and a girl.

Here is the human story of our struggle for independence and the part Benjamin Franklin played in it.

EX-PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON

PRESIDENT WILSON WAS HUMAN PHENOMENON OF GREATEST WAR

At 54 No More Than a University Professor and Political Writer; at 63 in a Place of Power and Fame and Honor Unsurpassed in History—Defended His Unsuccessful Peace Policies to the Last.

History, in determining the place of Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States of America, will pass judgment upon the most prominent world-figure of the events growing out of the most momentous war of all time. From the viewpoint of hundreds of millions of lovers of liberty Woodrow Wilson stood at the zenith, as the ex-kaiser stands at the nadir.

The great war brought to the front many men whose names will live in honor. In the last analysis three men stand out: Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau. Of these three it was Wilson who held the world's eye—Wilson, the human phenomenon of the times, until fifty-four no more than a college president and political writer and at sixty-three on a pinnacle of fame and honor and power unsurpassed if ever attained by any man in history.

It is impossible now to differentiate between Woodrow Wilson the man and Woodrow Wilson the head of the most powerful nation of earth in wealth, material and fighting men. Certainly he could not have reached the place he held without great ability and extraordinary capacity for leadership. By virtue of his place he became a focus of world attention as soon as the great war began. Before the armistice was signed he had become a great moral leader with the ear of the peoples of the world. Only as such could he have forced upon the allied world the unofficial acceptance of his project of a league of nations, with its fourteen points as set forth to congress January 18, 1918.

Abroad and at Home.

The enthusiasm evoked by President Wilson's visits to Paris, London and Rome was proof of his unique place in the regard of the people. It was evident that he was to Europeans not so much a man as a voice—a voice putting into words what they wanted and had not been able to express; his ideas and ideals were a sort of religion to them.

But he showed himself a statesman as well as a voice. He played the game masterfully. He established sympathy between himself and his man or his crowd. He made few if any mistakes in taste or judgment. He "matched his mind," to use his own expression, with the best of Europe and he got his league of nations before the peace conference and got it adopted.

President Wilson's two months in Europe may be divided into phases. When he landed the attitude toward the league of nations was this: The government of France was antagonistic; Great Britain's was suspicious; Italy's was skeptical. The first phase, his triumphant progress through France, England and Italy opened the eyes of these governments to his hold on the people. The second phase, the preliminary work of the peace conference, convinced these governments that President Wilson had an idea rather than a set plan which he purposed to force upon them. This simplified the situation and the rush to climb on the bandwagon began.

Contemporary estimates of President Wilson at home were as wide apart as the poles. Senator J. Thomas Hefflin (Dem., Ala.), when representative spoke on the floor of "Woodrow Wilson, the greatest apostle of world liberty and democracy since Jesus Christ."

Senator Thomas W. Hardwick (Dem.) of Georgia, said January 21 in the senate: "I believe in a written constitution. I believe in a strict interpretation of it. . . and I believe that unless we leave and abandon this mad saturation of imperialism here at home and return to the ancient principles of our fathers there will be no safety nor happiness for the people of this republic."

Senator Albert B. Cummins (Rep.) of Iowa expressed the half-way view when he said in the senate January 23: "I think President Wilson is the most intensely practical statesman of this or any other day. He began his administration in the belief that the executive office had not the power that it ought to have. He has accomplished more in the direction in which he set his face and his mind than any other man, either in this generation or in any former generation; and the only criticism, if it be a criticism, is that he has not marched in the right direction and has done things that he ought not to have done."

In the process of wresting from congress all the powers he believed the Constitution conferred upon the executive, President Wilson made many political enemies who questioned not his ability, but his motives and methods. To particularize would be largely to review the political history of the last six years. The railroad situation, however, may be cited as an example. Representative E. E. Denison (Rep.) of Illinois said January 15, 1919, "Government ownership of railroads will be the dominant political issue in the next national campaign and Mr. McAdoo will of course expect to be the candidate of his party. He will hope to capitalize what has been done for the railroad men."

President Wilson was re-elected in 1916 upon a peace platform. October 25, 1918, just before the congressional elections, he issued an appeal to the voters of the United States asking them, if they had approved of his leadership and wished him to continue to be their unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, to express themselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both houses. The result of the elections was to change the political complexion of both houses as follows: 65th congress—Senate, 51 Democrats and 45 Republicans; house, 215 Republicans and 213 Democrats. 66th congress—Senate, 47 Democrats and 49 Republicans; house, 239 Republicans and 193 Democrats.

President Wilson in attending the peace conference made several new departures. He left the country during office. He took the office with him, signing acts and making appointments while in Paris. He ignored the senate, though he is empowered by the Constitution to make treaties "by and with the advice and consent of the senate."

He appointed as the American representatives himself, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Henry White, Edward M. House and General Tasker H. Bliss. He sailed December 4, 1918, and arrived at Paris December 14. The French capital was en fete for the occasion. December 24 he went to England and thence to Italy. He returned to Paris January 8, after a journey that resembled a "triumphal procession."

After the preliminary sessions of the peace conference President Wilson returned to the United States in February, returning to Paris March 15, 1919. He signed the peace treaty June 28, 1919, and returned to the United States July 8. His second term as president expired March 3, 1920.

After his retirement from the presidency Mr. Wilson lived quietly, making a partly successful fight to regain his health. He occasionally went to the theater and rode much in his car about the environs of Washington. He bought a home in Washington and in 1921 formed a law partnership with Bainbridge Colby, who had been his secretary of state, succeeding Robert Lansing. He took part in the funeral procession of President Harding in Washington and was the recipient of much public attention.

Mr. Wilson's last public utterance was last fall. November 10, 1923, the eve of Armistice day, he spoke by radio to the American people, defending his peace policy and saying that the American people had withdrawn into a "sulen and selfish isolation which is deeply ignoble because manifestly cowardly and dishonorable."

Armistice day Mr. Wilson briefly addressed thousands from the front steps of his home, concluding thus:

"I am not one of those that have the least anxiety about the triumph of the principles I have stood for. I have seen fools resist Providence before and I have seen their destruction, as will come upon these again—utter destruction and contempt. That we shall prevail is as sure as that God reigns. Thank you."

COOLIDGE AIDS WHEAT COUNTRY

Program for Relief of the Northwest Drawn Up at Washington.

Washington.—Under the direction of President Coolidge, emergency measures were formulated here to relieve the financial stringency and economic distress in the wheat region of the Northwest. The essential features of the administration program follow:

1. Creation of a $10,000,000 corporation to furnish financial aid to banking and agricultural interests, an undertaking endorsed by the conference here of financiers and business men from the Northwest invited by the President.

2. Passage of the Norbeck-Burtess bill providing for an appropriation of $50,000,000 for a loan fund to be administered by the secretary of agriculture and two commissioners for the financing of crop diversification by wheat farmers.

3. Extension to the end of this calendar year of the period in which the War Finance corporation may make advances for agricultural purposes.

The conference, following an address by President Coolidge advocating the last two of these measures, proposed the creation of the $10,000,000 corporation in the following resolution:

"Resolved, that this project for the creation of a $10,000,000 corporation to assist in the emergency in the Northwest is in principle approved and that Ralph Van Vechten, E. W. Decker, John McHugh, Clarence M. Wooley, Alexander Legge, C. T. Jaffrey and R. P. Lamont are appointed a committee on organization, with full power to prepare the charter and by-laws and to add to their membership and take any other action appropriate, and that the committee requests the cooperation of the secretaries of the treasury, commerce and agriculture, and of the managing director of the War Finance corporation in the appointment of committees to solicit subscriptions for the capital stock of the corporation."

Gale and Sleet Choke Chicago; Traffic Tied Up

Chicago.—Stinging sleet, whipped across the city at times by a 46-mile gale, practically isolated Chicago from the rest of the world for hours Monday night. The storm seriously crippled local transportation of every sort. Street car traffic in the city was at a standstill. Streets and boulevards were lined with automobiles caught in drifts or rendered useless by the heavy fall of fine ice and heavy wet snow. Transcontinental trains scheduled to depart over northwestern and direct western routes were being held in the Chicago terminals.

Sinclair Deals With Reds for the Crown Jewels

Paris.—It is understood that Harry Sinclair, American oil magnate, has completed the formation of a company to purchase the Russian crown jewels from Moscow and also to obtain large quantities of platinum from Russia. Through the formation of an American corporation, Mr. Sinclair hopes to obtain the right to fetch the Romanoff jewels from Russia and to sell them in New York. The exact sum is not known, but it is understood that it runs into the millions.

Gleaming Pink Coffin of King Tut Is Revealed

Luxor, Egypt.—The fourth or inner casket of Tut-Ankh-Amen, for the first time in 3,200 years, was revealed to human gaze Monday. The heavy ornate chest, under the glow of electric lights, was gleaming pink. At the four corners stood goddesses of death, warding off evil spirits. The mummy is expected to be revealed in a few days.

Why You May Need—

There are three main groups of prospective buyers of Chevrolet automobiles and commercial cars.

First, are all who know from comparisons or through the experiences of friends that Chevrolet provides the utmost dollar value in modern, economical transportation of people or merchandise.

Second, the large group of people with modest incomes who have the false impression that so good a car as Chevrolet is beyond their means.

They do not realize that due to engineering excellence and full modern equipment, Chevrolet operating and maintenance costs average so low that during the life of the car, it delivers modern, comfortable, fast transportation at the lowest cost per mile, including the purchase price.

Third, the smaller but very important group of car owners of ample means, only a small percentage of whom as yet realize that Chevrolet as an extra car virtually costs them nothing, due to the reduction in their transportation expenses effected by it.

We respectfully suggest consideration, investigation and comparison of Chevrolet with any other car at any price.

Caspian Sea Tideless

The Caspian sea is a tideless inland sea which is becoming saltier through evaporation. It is the largest inland body of water in the world. It is 700 miles long in north to south direction, and has a width varying from more than 100 to nearly 300 miles. Lake Superior is the largest fresh water body in the world. The extreme length of Lake Superior from east to west is 412 miles. Its extreme breadth is 167 miles.

Worth More Than Gold

The rhea of the Argentine pampas and the Patagonian wastes has been done to death in thousands and its feathers sold, says Nature Magazine. Heron feathers were worth eighty dollars an ounce, four times as much as gold; and, as man has murdered his fellowman for gold since he first stood on two legs, the bird was doomed.

One Reason for Nervous Disorders

YOUR doctor can tell you that nervous disorders are very common among Americans. One reason for this is found in the fact that they are great coffee drinkers.

Coffee contains caffeine, a drug, prescribed by doctors as an emergency stimulant for the heart and nervous system. It has a tendency to increase blood pressure, develop heart irregularities and cause digestive disturbances.

If you feel that coffee is not good for you, serve Postum as your meal-time drink.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage that refreshes and satisfies. It is absolutely free from caffeine or any other irritating drug.

Try a cup of Postum with your dinner or supper tonight. Postum is sold everywhere.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

ELEPHANT STYLES

The Elephants were talking before they went to bed. They did not pull back the sheets and blankets and put their heads upon pillows when they went to bed.

Miss Indian Elephant.

They had straw which they thought was just as comfortable, or sometimes they stayed out-of-doors where the ground was nice and soft.

"People," said Miss Indian Elephant, "are so conceited. They think they're the only creatures in the world who have styles. They change their styles all the time, too. Why not have a good style and stick to it?"

"Elephants have styles but they stick to them. Elephants are very sensible. Well, we wouldn't have grown to be so large if we hadn't amounted to something."

"We do amount to a good deal in size at any rate," said another Elephant.

"Size and sense—both," said Miss Indian Elephant, as she moved her trunk from side to side though she had no intention of going anywhere.

Her trunk, of course, is attached to her and if she wants to move, her trunk must always move, too. There is no sending of a trunk by express, nor of checking it at a railway station, in the Elephant world.

"Now, we have small, three-cornered shaped ears. That is the style for ears among Indian Elephants," she continued.

"The Sudan African Elephants have ears which look like flapping sails. Such is their style and they stick to it."

"Of course it is just as well we don't change our styles. It would be horrible to have one kind of ears one year and another kind the next. It might be painful, too."

"The West African Elephants have small, nicely rounded ears."

"True," said another Miss Indian Elephant. "And we have the splendid habit of getting spruced up in the spring."

"We are oiled and rubbed and our toe-nails are cut. We look very smart in the springtime. The keeper knows that when we are free we can oil our skin in the jungle waters."

"Of course we have no nail-scissors and we do not cut our toe-nails when we are free but we keep them in good condition by climbing over rough places so that they do not become too long or ill-shaped."

"Many people do not know that an elephant is very particular about toe-nails. We're pretty fussy when all is said and done."

But the Elephants were becoming very sleepy. They had talked enough. "Good-night," they said to each other in their elephant way, "pleasant elephant dreams."

"Ah, yes," said Miss Indian Elephant, "I shall dream a little, I hope, but not too much. For a quiet sleep will be better to help me keep my Elephant beauty. An Elephant, too, must have beauty sleep."

So the Elephants went to sleep and dreamed sweet elephant dreams and stored up plenty of strength, too, so that they would live to be old. For elephants live to be very, very old.

Some elephants have been known to live several hundred years and a twenty-five-year-old elephant in elephant circles is nothing but a baby.

In the zoo when an elephant is sick he is given castor oil which he hates just as much as anyone else hates it.

But he does not have to have it often for elephants are strong and healthy and do not need much medicine.

They are not only big and generous in size but generous in health, too!

And next morning when they awoke one of the other elephants said to his mate:

"I dreamed of those days when we lived in the African jungles and when we were but little, young ones of about four or five years old. You were my mate then, and they brought us here together."

"And we have been here 20 years and have found people friendly and nice."

"But my dreams were, last night, of those jungle days over 20 years ago."

"Strange," said his mate, "but my dreams were the same. And I dreamed, too, that I was so happy and relieved when I found you, too, were to be on that long, strange, unusual journey which brought us here."

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 10

THE FAILURE AT KADESH

LESSON TEXT—Num. 14:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is with us: fear them not.—Num. 14:9.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Israel Failed at Kadesh.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Crisis at Kadesh.

I. The Spies Sent Out (Num. 13:17-20).

Less than two years had passed since the Israelites were delivered from their Egyptian bondage. They were now at Kadesh-barnea, within sight of the promised land. Moses urged them to go in and take immediate possession (Deut. 1:21), but they failed because of their unbelief (Heb. 3:19). The record in Deuteronomy 1:19-25 shows that God did not take the initiative in sending out the spies but that request was made by the people. Representative men, a ruler from each tribe, were secured. There was a three-fold purpose in sending out the spies:

1. To see whether the land was as God had told them (v. 18).

2. To see whether the people who dwelt there were strong or weak, few or many (v. 18).

3. To see whether the cities were made up of strongholds or tents (v. 19).

II. The Commission Executed (Num. 13:21-25).

They entered the land from the south and traversed it to its northern limit. They spent 40 days in this investigating exploration. On their return from the north, they gathered some specimens of the fruit of the land. Two of them, perhaps Caleb and Joshua, bore a cluster of grapes upon a staff between them as a witness that God had spoken the truth about the land.

III. The Spies Rendered a Report (Num. 13:26-33).

On their return this committee of explorers rendered a report to the whole congregation. It was not unanimous.

1. The Majority Report (vv. 26-29).

(1) A land flowing with milk and honey (v. 27). As a proof thereof, they exhibited the fruit. (2) The people who live there are strong (v. 28).

(3) The people live in walled cities (v. 28). (4) The land is inhabited with giants (v. 28; cf. v. 33). They saw themselves as grasshoppers. Furthermore, they saw the people so distributed, the Amalekites in the south, the Hittites, Jebusites and the Amorites in the mountains, and the Canaanites along the sea, that it was impossible to take them.

2. The Minority Report (vv. 30-33). In part this report agrees with the first. It does not ignore the difficulties nor dispute the facts. It denies the conclusions of the majority. They did not minimize the task before them, but asserted that with God's help they were well able to take possession of the land, and urged immediate action. The ten had their eyes on the difficulties, but Caleb and Joshua fixed their eyes upon God. Caleb lived to see his suggestions made real.

IV. The Rebellion of the People (Num. 14:1-10).

This rebellion began by crying, which shows that they were cowards. Having left God out of the question, they now weep and howl.

1. Murmuring (vv. 1-3). This weeping and howling was turned into murmuring against Moses and Aaron. Though too weak and cowardly to take their enemies in the power of God, they could assail their leaders. They even wished that they had died in Egypt.

2. Proposition to Organize to Return to Egypt (vv. 3, 4). They proposed to select a captain as their leader. God took them at their word—sent them back to wander in the wilderness for 38 years, during which time they all died except Joshua and Caleb.

3. Moses and Aaron Prostrate Themselves (v. 5).

4. Joshua and Caleb Protested (vv. 6-9). They rent their clothes. They insisted that the land was good and that, if the Lord delighted in them, He would bring them into the land.

5. The People Were Filled With Murderous Hate and Proposed Stoning Joshua and Caleb (v. 10).

6. God's Interposition (v. 10). He manifested His glory before all the children of Israel in vindication of the loyalty of Joshua and Caleb. God then proposed punishment for Israel.

Sympathy.

Often the best act of sympathy you can extend to a friend in a great sorrow is to go to him and be with him, saying little or nothing; for there are sorrows that are beyond words.—Presbyterian Record.

God's Remedy.

There are wrongs in this world to be righted, but no moral philosophy will right them. God alone can meet such a situation with an adequate remedy.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Our Helper Is Omnipotent.

It is impossible for that man to despair who remembers that his Helper is omnipotent.—Jeremy Taylor.

God Hears.

But I know God hears the sobs in the dark, and the dropping tears.

Did You Ever Think

that you might have been living as a British subject but for Poor Richard? And you would be reckoning values in pounds, shillings and pence.

Then Irving Bacheller's great book —

But then there would have been no such story as "In the Days of Poor Richard." We'd all have been out of luck!

Lincoln's Mother

On February 12th we pay distinguished homage to Abraham Lincoln with all too little recognition of the magnificent mother who reared him.

Nancy Hanks Lincoln died in her thirties, a tired, overburdened pioneer mother. Not one labor-saving device did she own. She spun the wool for the clothes and sewed them by hand. She washed on a board, cooked over a fire which she tended herself, groped her way about the windowless cabin in the uncertain light of the fireplace. She died 43 years before her son was inaugurated.

Somewhere in America today, another young mother is rearing a future president. Her household labors are lifted by electrical appliances. Electricity washes the clothes, cooks the food, cleans the rugs, lights the home.

This mother will live to see her son inaugurated, her span of years lengthened by electrical service.

Health Brings Beauty
All Women Can Look Well if in Health.

Champaign, Ill.—"Ever since I developed into womanhood I have been troubled with functional disturbances and fainting spells. I was under a physician's care, but no medicine I took seemed to do me any good. A friend, who had gone through the same experience as myself and had found such help by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, urged me to try it. I tried it and to my great delight the Prescription brought about a wonderful change, every organ functioning correctly. I can speak in the highest praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. S. W. Knott, 1212 N. Market St.

CHAPTER XIX

A School District Held Up.
Colonel Woodruff was on his feet as Jim made his way through the crowd about the door.

"Mr. Irwin is here, ladies and gentlemen," said he, "and I move that we hear from him as to what we can do to meet the offer of our friends in Potawatomi county; but before I yield the floor, I want to say that this meeting has been worth while just to have been the occasion of our all becoming better acquainted with our friend and neighbor, Mr. Simms. Whatever may have been the lack of understanding, on our part, of his qualities, they were all cleared up by that speech of his—the best I have ever heard in this neighborhood.

More applause, in the midst of which Old Man Simms slunk away down in his seat to escape observation. Then the chairman said that if there was no objection they would hear from their well-known citizen, whose growing fame was more remarkable for the fact that it had been gained as a country schoolmaster—he need not add that he referred to Mr. James E. Irwin. (More and louder applause.)

"Friends and neighbors," said Jim, "you ask me to say to you what I want you to do. I want you to do what you want to do—nothing more or less. Last year I was glad to be tolerated here; and the only change in the situation lies in the fact that I have another place offered me—unless there has been a change in your feelings toward me and my work. I hope there has been; for I know my work is good now, whereas I only believed it then."

"Sure it is!" shouted Con Bonner from a front seat, thus signaling that astute wirepuller's definite choice of a place in the bandwagon. "Tell us what you want, Jim!"

"What do I want?" asked Jim. "More than anything else, I want such meetings as this—often—and a place to hold them. If I stay in the Woodruff District, I want this meeting to effect a permanent organization to work with me. I can't teach this district anything. Nobody can teach any one anything. All any teacher can do is to direct people's activities in teaching themselves. You are gathered here to decide what you'll do about the small matter of keeping me at work as your hired man."

"If I'm to be your hired man, I want a boss in the shape of a civic organization which will take in every man and woman in the district. Here's the place and now's the time to make that organization—an organization the object of which shall be to put the whole district at school, and to boss me in my work for the whole district."

"Dat sounds good," cried Haakon Peterson. "Ve'll do dat!"

"Then I want you to work out a building scheme for the school," Jim went on. "We want a place where girls can learn to cook, keep house, take care of babies, sew, and learn to be wives and mothers. There's somebody right in this neighborhood able to teach anything the young people want to learn."

"And I want a physician here once in a while to examine the children as to their health, and a dentist to look after their teeth and teach them how to care for them. Also an oculist to examine their eyes. And when Bettina Hansen comes home from the hospital a trained nurse, I want her to have a job as visiting nurse right here in the Woodruff District."

"I want a counting-room for the keeping of the farm accounts and the record of our observation in farming. I want co-operation in letting us have these accounts."

"I want some manual training equipment for wood-working and metal working, and a blacksmith and wagon shop, in which the boys may learn to shoe horses, repair tools, design buildings, and practice the best agricultural engineering. I want to do work in poultry according to the most modern breeding discoveries, and I want your co-operation in that, and a poultry plant somewhere in the district."

"I want a laboratory in which we can work on seeds, pests, soils, feeds and the like. For the education of your children must come out of these things."

"I want these things because they are necessary if we are to get the culture out of life we should get—and nobody gets culture out of any sort of school—they get it out of life, or they don't get it at all."

"So I want you to build as freely for your school as for your cattle and horses and hogs."

"The school will make for you—this new kind of rural school—a social life which will be the social center, because it will be the educational center, and the business center of the countryside."

"I want all these things, and more. But I don't expect them all at once. I know that this district is too small to do all of them, and therefore, I want a bigger district—one that will give us the financial strength to carry out the program I have sketched. This may be a presumptuous thing for me to propose. If you think so, let me go. But if you don't, please keep this meeting together in a permanent organization of grownup members of the Woodruff school, and by pulling together, you can do these things—all of them—and many more—and you'll make the Woodruff District a good place to live in and die in—and I shall be proud to live and die in it at your service, as the neighborhood's hired man!"

As Jim sat down there was a hush in the crowded room, as if the people were dazed at his assurance. There was no applause, until Jennie Woodruff, now seen by Jim for the first time over next the blackboard, clapped her gloved hands together and started it; then it swept out through the windows in a storm. The dust rose from stamping feet, until the kerosene lamps were dimmed by it. And as the noise subsided, Jim saw standing out in front the stooped form of B. B. Hamm, one of the most prosperous men in the district.

"Mr. Chairman—Ezra Bronson," he roared, "this feller's crazy, an' from the sound of things, you're all as crazy as he is. If this fool scheme of his goes through, my farm's for sale! I'll quit before I'm sold out for taxes!"

"Just a minute, B. B.!" interposed Colonel Woodruff. "This ain't as dangerous as you think. You don't want us to do all this in fifteen minutes, do you, Jim?"

"Oh, as to that," replied Jim, "I just wanted you to have in your minds what I have in my mind—and unless we can agree to work toward these things there's no use in my staying. But time—that's another matter. Believe with me, and I'll work with you."

"Get out of here!" said the colonel to Jim in an undertone, "and leave the rest to your friends."

Jim walked out of the room and took the way toward his home. A horse tied to the hitching-post had his blanket under foot, and Jim replaced it on his back, patting him kindly and talking horse language to him. Then he went up and down the line of teams, readjusting blankets, tying loosened knots, and assuring himself that his neighbors' horses were securely tied and comfortable. He knew horses better than he knew people, he thought. If he could manage people as he could manage horses—but that would be wrong. Horse management was despotism; man-government must be like the government of a society of wild horses, the result of the common work of the members of the herd.

Two figures emerged from the schoolhouse door, and as he turned toward his home after his pastoral calls on the horses, they overtook him. They were the figures of Newton Bronson and the county superintendent of schools.

"Dat wants you back there again," said Newton.

"What for?" inquired Jim.

"You silly boy," said Jennie, "you talked about the good of the schools all of the time, and never said a word about your own salary! What do you want? They want to know?"

"Oh!" exclaimed Jim in the manner of one who suddenly remembers that he has forgotten his umbrella or his pocket-knife. "I forgot all about it. I haven't thought about that at all, Jennie!"

"Jim," said she, "you need a guardian!"

"I know it, Jennie," said he, "and I know who I want. I want—"

"Please come back," said Jennie, "and tell papa how much you're going to hold the district up for."

"You run back," said Jim to Newton, "and tell your father that whatever is right in the way of salary will be satisfactory to me. I leave that to the people."

Newton darted off, leaving the schoolmaster standing in the road with the county superintendent.

"I can't go back there!" said Jim. "I'm proud of you, Jim," said Jennie.

"This community has found its master. They can't do all you ask now, nor very soon; but finally they'll do just as you want them to do. And, Jim, I want to say that I've been the biggest little fool in the county!"

CHAPTER XX

Theory and Practice.

Superintendent Jennie sat at her desk in no very satisfactory frame of mind. In the first place the court was to convene on the following Monday, so that her one-room office was not to be hers for a few days. To Wilbur Smythe, who did her the honor of calling occasionally, she remarked that if they didn't soon build the new courthouse so as to give her such accommodations as her office really needed, "they might take their old office—so there!"

"Fair woman," said Wilbur, as he creased his Prince Albert in a parting bow, "should adorn the home!"

"Bosh!" sneered Jennie, rather pleased, all the same, "suppose she isn't fair, and hasn't any home!"

This question of adorning a home was no nearer settlement with Jennie than it had ever been, though increasingly a matter of speculation. There were two or three men—rather good catches, too—who, if they were encouraged—but what was there to any of them? This is what Jennie asked her paper-weight as she placed it on a pile of unfinished examination papers. And the paper-weight echoed, "not a thing out of the ordinary!"

And then, said Jennie, "Well, you little simpleton, who and what are you so out of the ordinary that you should sneer at Wilbur Smythe and Beckman Fifield and such men?" And she answered, "What?"—and then the mail-carrier came in.

Down near the bottom of the pile she found this letter, signed by a southern state superintendent of schools, but dated at Kirkville, Missouri:

"I am a member of a party of southern educators—state superintendents in the main—en tour of the country to see what we can find of an instructive nature in rural school work. Professor Withers of Ames suggests that we visit your schools, and especially the rural school taught by a young man named Irwin, and I wonder if you will be free on next Monday morning, if we come to your office, to direct us to the place? If you could accompany us on the trip, and perhaps show us some of your other excellent schools, we should be honored and pleased."

And then came the shock—a party of state officials were coming into the county to study Jim Irwin's school! They would never come to study Wilbur Smythe's law practice—never in the world—or her work as county superintendent—never!—and Jim was getting seventy-five dollars a month, and had a mother to support. But there could be no doubt that there was something to Jim—the man was out of the ordinary. And wasn't that just what she had been looking for in her mind?

Jennie wired to her southerner for the number of his party, and secured automobiles for the trip. She sent a note to Jim Irwin telling of the prospective visitation. She would show all concerned that she could do some things, anyhow, and she would send these people on with a good impression of her county.

She was glad of the automobiles the next Monday morning, when at nine-thirty the train discharged upon her a dozen very able, and, by the way, very inquisitive southerners, male and female, most of whom seemed to have left their "r's" in the gulf region. It was eleven when the party parked their machines before the schoolhouse door.

"There are visitors here before us," said Jennie.

"Seems rather like an educational shrine," said Doctor Brathway of Mississippi. "How does he accommodate so many visitors in that small edifice?"

"I am not aware," said Jennie, "that he has been in the habit of receiving so very many from outside the district. Well, shall we go in?"

Once inside, Jennie felt a queer return of her old aversion to Jim's methods—the aversion which had caused her to criticize him so sharply on the occasion of her first visit. The reason for the return of the feeling lay in the fact that the work going on was the same sort, but of a more intense character. It was so utterly unlike a school as Jennie understood the word, that she glanced back at the group of educators with a little blush. The school was in a sort of uproar. Not that uproar of boredom and mischief of which most of us have familiar memories, but a sort of eager uproar, in which every child was intensely interested in the same thing; and did little rustling things because of this interest; something like the hum at a football game or a dog-fight.

On one side of the desk stood Jim Irwin, and facing him was a smooth stranger of the old-fashioned lightning-rod-agent type—the shallower and laxer sort of salesman of the kind whose sole business is to get signatures on the dotted line, and let some one else do the rest. In short, he was a "closer."

Standing back of him in evident distress was Mr. Cornelius Bonner, and grouped about were Columbus Brown, B. B. Hamm, Ezra Bronson, A. B. Talcott and two or three others from outside the Woodruff district. With envelopes in their hands and the light of battle in their eyes stood Newton Bronson, Raymond Simms, Bettina Hansen, Mary Smith and Angie Talcott, the boys filled with delight, the girls rather frightened at being engaged in something like a debate with the salesman.

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day? Do you know these troubles are often due to weakened kidneys?

Winter's colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. The kidneys are apt to weaken and fall behind in filtering the blood. Poisons accumulate and upset blood and nerves.

Then comes constant backache, rheumatic pains, headache, dizziness and kidney irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay is often serious. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They are recommended by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

John Williamson, prop. of grocery store, 740 N. 27th St., E. St. Louis, Ill., says: "My back ached and I had sharp pains through the small of it when I stooped or straightened. My kidneys acted irregularly. The secretions passed too often and were scanty, painful and filled with sediment. I used Doan's Pills and they gave me relief in a short time. I haven't been troubled since."

Mrs. Hannah Powers, 1721 Hall St., E. St. Louis, Ill., says: "Sharp pains caught me through the small of my back when I stooped. I felt tired and achy all through my limbs. My kidneys acted irregularly and showed different signs of disorder. I used Doan's Pills and they have never failed to bring relief almost instantly."

HAD TO LET HOUSEWORK GO

So Ill Husband had to do the Work.
Completely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

South Bend, Indiana.—"I was all run-down, tired out, and had pains in my back and bearing-down pains. I was so sore I could hardly drag myself around and was not able to do a bit of housework. My husband worked all day in the shop, and then came home and helped me at night. The doctors said I had female weakness, and there was no help but to be operated upon, and of course that would cost a great deal. My husband heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the factory and one night he stopped at the drug store and bought me a bottle of it. I had begun to think there was no help for me, but I took three bottles of it and now I feel like myself once more. The price for three bottles wasn't so much as the doctor had charged. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough."—Mrs. DORA OSBORNE, 430 Sherman Avenue, South Bend, Ind.

Women troubled with female weakness should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial—now. For sale by druggists everywhere.

"Fully Persuaded"

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE

Teacher of Bible Doctrine, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—And being fully persuaded that what He had promised, He was able to perform.—Rom. 4:21.

There is a great difference between opinions and convictions. Opinions are subject to change, or at least ought to be, but convictions, when founded on the Word of God, are not changed nor changeable. His Word abideth ever. Therefore, intelligent convictions based upon it have an abiding quality within them.

Concerning certain spiritual truths clearly declared in the Bible, there ought to be full persuasion. First, we would place the matter of forgiveness. The Bible is unmistakably clear in its declarations of a free and full forgiveness of sins through the atoning blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. In I John 2:12, it is written, "I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for His Name's sake." In Hebrews 10:17, we read, "Their sins and iniquities will I remember no more." Concerning this matter God has issued a proclamation to which we should give heed, and concerning which we should have strong convictions. This proclamation is found in Acts 10:38, 39. It reads in this way: "Be it known unto you, therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins." God proclaims to the world the forgiveness of sins through this man—the man who was crucified, who was buried, and who on the third day arose from the dead and stood forth as the Lord of life and the conqueror of death. Something has been done by this man which enables God to offer a free and full forgiveness to every soul. All the virtue and value of the work of Christ is made over to those who are forgiven by faith in the blood that was shed for the sins of the world.

We should be fully persuaded concerning our union with Christ. When a sinner believes the testimony of God concerning His Son, that sinner is not only forgiven, but made one with Christ, so that, to use Bible words, "We are members of His body." The spiritual body of Christ consists of Himself as the Risen Head, and every believer in Him. This union is vital and vitalizing. The life of Christ is imparted to the members of His spiritual body, so that each member may say, as the apostle said, "Christ liveth in me." This is the source of the believer's sufficiency for all things. In view of this he sings the familiar words of the hymn, "Thou, O Christ, art all I want, more than all in Thee I find."

Again, there ought to be full persuasion concerning the necessity of prayer. Many waver at this point. They desire a philosophy of prayer. The Bible gives no philosophy concerning prayer, but it does bid the Christian to pray. The one person in all the world who knows about the operations of prayer and its place in the economy of God, said: "Men ought always to pray." The greatest incentive to prayer is not a sense of need, or the accumulation of statistics, but the fact that the Son of God who sees behind the veil and who knows all that is going on in God's universe, commanded us to pray. Prayer, then, is a matter of faith, and blessed is he who has convictions concerning this matter growing out of faith in the Word of his Lord.

Another necessary conviction for the Christian believer is that the Spirit-filled life is the ultimate thing in Christian experience. When one becomes a Christian through faith in Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit comes as the heavenly and abiding Guest of the soul. All Christians are indwelt by the Holy Spirit, but not all Christians are filled by the Spirit. It is this that makes the difference between one Christian and another so far as the quality of life is concerned. Some lives are so preoccupied with human plans and the activities of self-will, that the Spirit of God is limited in His operations. If the habit of life could be formed of continually saying, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me do," then the Spirit of God could direct and control in such a way as that He would be in the place of authority and leadership, and the highest possibility of Christian experience would be entered into and enjoyed. This experience is often realized by an act of surrender to God such as we are called to make in Romans 6:13, or Romans 12:1, 2, but the act of itself is not sufficient; it must be followed by a process in which adjustment is constantly made to the known will of God. Let his attitude of willingness to do His will prevail, and the Spirit-filled life will become a matter of daily experience. In Titus 3:5, we read He saved us by the washing of regeneration and by the renewing of the Holy Spirit. This renewing relates to the Spirit's fullness. In our contact with the world as Christians we are called to give our spiritual strength constantly in order to bear a good testimony for our Lord. This demands just as constant a renewing, and for this God has made a gracious provision. His command is: "Be filled with the Spirit."

Cure for Insomnia

Insomnia victims have found strange cures, such as counting imaginary sheep passing through a gate, but an innkeeper in Europe, when she discovers one of her guests has not slept well, turns his bed so that it will face in another direction. She maintains from her long experience in catering to the comfort of travelers that some are "east and westers," while others are "north and southers," or "west and easters" when it comes to sleeping.

Canada and the United States are trying to stem the slaughter of migratory wild birds, says Nature Magazine. However, many of our migrating ducks pass on into Mexico to spend the winter. Here we have no co-operation, and there birds are often slaughtered wholesale.

Caught the Post

Pat was walking along the road when, hearing a whir, he looked back and saw Larry flying fast and furious on a bicycle.

"Hi, wait a minute," shouted Pat. "I want to speak to you."

"I can't; I'm in a hurry. I want to catch the post," cried Larry, flying by. Suddenly the bicycle swerved and crashed into a telegraph pole and Larry and the machine lay in a helpless tangle. When Pat came up Larry was extricating himself from the wire puzzle.

"Begorra," said Pat, with a grin, "I see you caught the post."

Fish Not Brain Food

It used to be believed that certain foods, especially fish and other foods containing phosphorus, were especially valuable for the gray matter of the brain. This is not believed any more. Roads Employ Many Men

There are 77,000 trolley car motor-men employed in this country every day on the electric railways. It requires 63,000 conductors for their cars. Approximately 150,000 other men are employed on the tracks and in the shops and car houses of these electric railways.

The wages of this large group of men are derived from the receipts of the electric railways from fares paid by their passengers.

How Coal Mines Look

A coal mine has the appearance of a crushed centipede, says Nature Magazine. If the surface could be lifted off, as one cuts open an ant hill, the mine, with its main corridor and its lateral chambers would look not unlike a long bridge, with frequent supports, laid over on its side.
